

Goals Values

Name	Value
Being Self	The capacity to own one's truth about one's self and the world with objective awareness of personal strengths and limitations plus the ability to act both independently and cooperatively when appropriate.
Equality/Liberation	Experiencing one's self as having the same value and rights as all other human beings in such a way that one is set free to be that self and free others to be themselves. This is the critical conscience of the value of being human.
Fantasy/Play	The experience of personal worth through unrestrained imagination and personal amusement.
Human Dignity	Consciousness of the basic right of every human being to have respect and to have his/her basic needs met that will allow him/her the opportunity to develop his/ her potential.
Integration/Wholeness	The inner capacity to organize the personality (mind and body) into a coordinated, harmonious totality.
Knowledge/Discovery/Insight	The pursuit of truth through patterned investigation. One is motivated by increased intuition and unconsciously gained understandings of the wholeness of reality.
Life/Self Actualization	The inner drive toward experiencing and expressing the totality of one's being through spiritual, psychological, physical and mental exercises which enhances the development of one's maximum potential.
Self-Competence/Confidence	Realistic and objective confidence that one has the skills to achieve in the world of work and to feel that those skills are a positive contribution.
Service/Vocation	To be motivated to use one's unique gifts and skills to contribute to society through one's occupation, business, profession or calling.
Truth/Wisdom/Integrated Insight	Intense pursuit and discovery of ultimate truth above all other activities which results in intimate knowledge of objective and subjective realities which converge into the capacity to clearly comprehend persons and systems and their interrelationship.
Work/Labor	To have minimal skills and rights that allow one to produce a minimal living for one's self and one's family.

Means Values

Name	Value
Adaptability/Flexibility	To adjust one's self readily to changing conditions and to remain pliable during ongoing processes.
Collaboration/Subsidiarity	The ability of an organizational leader to cooperate interdependently with all levels of management to insure full and appropriate delegation of responsibility.
Communication/Information	Effective and efficient transmission and flow of ideas and factual data within and between persons, departments and divisions of an organization.
Community/Supportive	The recognition and will to create a group of peers for the purpose of ongoing mutual support and creative enhancement of each individual. It is the additional awareness of the need for such a group in the work environment and with peer professionals, to enable one to detach from external pressures that deter one from acting with clarity on chosen values and ethical principles that might be otherwise compromised.
Cooperation/Complementarity	The capacity to enable persons in a corporation or institution to work cooperatively with one another such that the unique skills and qualities of one individual supplement, support and enhance the skills and qualities of the others in the group.
Creativity/Ideation	The capacity for original thought and expression that brings new ideas and images into a practical and concrete reality in ways that did not previously exist.
Decision/Initiation	To feel that it is one's responsibility to begin a creative course of action, or to act on one's conscience without external prompting.
Education/Knowledge/Insight	The experience of ongoing learning as a means of gaining new facts, truths and principles. One is motivated by the occasional reward of new understanding that is gained intuitively.
Generosity/Service	To share one's unique gifts and skills with others as a way of serving humanity without expecting reciprocation.
Independence	Thinking and acting for one's self in matters of opinion, conduct, etc., without being subject to external constraint or authority.
Sharing/Listening/Trust	The capacity to actively and accurately hear another's thoughts and feelings and to express one's own thoughts and feelings in a climate of mutual confidence in each other's integrity.